Instrument worked well except for an 80 minute gap about during storm overpasses. We still don't have times on when HIWRAP was down. The cause of the problem was a bad block on the data disk and then the pilot did not see the fail light until 80 minutes since he was busy flying the plane during turbulence. We're still downloading data but otherwise there do not appear to be any problems. We will use a different disk next flight and reformat the one that had problems.
